

Position

Postdoctoral researcher in plant developmental biology.

Working Place

Mitsuhiro Aida Laboratory, International Research Organization for Advanced Science and Technology (IROAST), Kumamoto University
2-39-1 Kurokami, Chuo-ku, Kumamoto 860-8555, JAPAN

Job Description

A postdoctoral position is immediately available in plant developmental biology. Our group is focusing on a plant stem cell tissue called the shoot meristem and studies how this tissue is initiated, maintained and modified during the plant life cycle. The available position will focus on functions of key transcription factors essential for shoot meristem activity and investigate how changes in transcriptional state are transformed into tissue shapes and behavior. The work will be performed in collaboration with IROAST members and other research teams in Faculty of Advanced Science and Technology at KU.

Starting Date

September 1, 2018 or later

Qualifications

Successful candidates should have completed or be about to complete a PhD in life science or other related area. They should be highly motivated and are expected to work both independently and as part of a team. Strong backgrounds in imaging and molecular genetics are also necessary. Experiences in Arabidopsis molecular genetics are favorable but not essential.

Application Period

Deadline for receipt: June 30, 2018.

The recruitment will be closed when the position is filled.
